

Fantastic Opportunity for a Driven Transactional Lawyer to Join an Entrepreneurial Business

Low Carbon is a renewable energy investment business which was launched at the start of 2012. Low Carbon deploys capital into renewable energy development companies and renewable energy projects with the aim of creating as many MWs of clean, green electricity as possible. Low Carbon invests its own proprietary capital and partners with institutional investors to fund the construction of projects. Investments to date have included projects generating electricity from solar PV, concentrated solar power, onshore wind and anaerobic digestion.

Due to the company's growth and the ever increasing demand for low carbon energy to curb the impact on climate change, a great opportunity has arisen for an additional lawyer to join our legal team. Reporting to the General Counsel and based in Mayfair, you will be involved in a wide range of transactions.

Your responsibilities will include:

- Negotiating and closing investment agreements;
- Driving forward renewable energy projects (land, planning and grid) through the development cycle and negotiating the construction and operational contracts and power purchase agreements;
- Leading the structuring and negotiation of financing transactions; and
- Implementing and overseeing all other in-house matters including governance, compliance and company secretarial matters.

To succeed in this exciting role, you are likely to be 3-6 years' PQE with extensive financing, corporate, projects, infrastructure and/or energy experience. A solid and proven transactional background and the ability to drive projects forward and work to tight deadlines will be essential. As a key and visible member of our talented, close-knit team, you must also be a pragmatic and hardworking individual who is prepared to roll up their sleeves. We are seeking a strong communicator, equally at home working independently as you are within a team and, above all, passionate about our values and goals. You must be able to make decisions and communicate complex legal problems in a simple and clear manner.

In return for your talent and motivation, we are offering the chance to work on a diverse range of ground-breaking projects as part of a dynamic and fast-growing business committed to making a difference. A competitive salary and benefits package will also be included.
